Unit 2: Case Study: The Media as Storytellers in Carlotta’s Journey

In this second unit, students will continue to closely examine the case study of The Little Rock Nine in A Mighty Long Way. They will expand their study as they learn about the role of various mediums in telling the story of The Little Rock Nine, including the introduction and reading of another text, Little Rock Girl 1957. As students read both texts, they will focus on the question “How do various mediums shape the story?” This concept will be analyzed through an investigation of the ways in which the press at the time portrayed The Little Rock Nine. As students engage in this investigation, they will work with several primary sources. Students will continue reading A Mighty Long Way; however, for some lessons Carlotta’s story will fade into the background as the focus shifts to other texts and the broader context of the civil rights era.

In the mid-unit assessment, students will build on the background knowledge they have gained about the civil rights movement and The Little Rock Nine as they analyze various mediums used to convey information about segregation. Students will also evaluate the advantages and disadvantages of using different mediums to communicate information during this mid-unit assessment. For the end of unit assessment, students will write an informational essay in which they use the strongest evidence from both texts to show how the various mediums illuminated a story, as well as how, at times, various mediums presented an incomplete or inaccurate picture of events, which also shaped a story.

Guiding Questions and Big Ideas

- How does studying diverse sources about the same topic build our understanding?
- Who shapes the story?
- How do various mediums shape the story?
- What are the advantages and disadvantages of using different mediums?

- The media can shape perceptions and outcomes of events.
Mid-Unit 2 Assessment

Evaluating and Classifying Primary Sources
This assessment centers on NYSP12 ELA CCLS RI.8.7. ### Optional: Experts, Fieldwork, and Service

Experts:
- Invite local journalists into your class to discuss the role of the press and how journalists work to ensure the integrity of the reporting they do.

Fieldwork:
- Research local civil rights movements and how the press has influenced the direction of those movements. Possible movements could include the women’s suffrage movement or the American Indian rights movement.

Service:
- Ask students to publish a pamphlet or brochure for other students at the school or community members outlining the advantages and disadvantages of different mediums with a goal of encouraging critical thinking about the reporting of the press.

Optional: Extensions

- Consider using the following additional speeches from Josh Gottheimer’s anthology: Ripples of Hope: Great American Civil Rights Speeches at a strategic point in the module: Unit 2, Lesson 3: “Dismantling Segregation: Brown v. Board of Education” (Thurgood Marshall, December 8, 1953). In Lessons 1 and 2 of Unit 2, students will read excerpts from the Brown v. Board of Education court decision. Before they make connections between these excerpts and Carlotta’s experiences in A Mighty Long Way, consider showing students the Thurgood Marshall speech. Students could then link the two texts to Carlotta’s experiences in A Mighty Long Way.

- Between Lessons 12 and 13, consider having students watch a video of Martin Luther King delivering his “I Have a Dream” speech and analyze the advantages and disadvantages of reading the text version of the speech and watching the video.

- Give students the opportunity to be a member of the press for a school or local event. Ask them to think about what medium(s) to use to “get the story right” and have them write a reflective piece about why they chose the medium(s) that they did.

Preparation and Materials

- As students read each night for homework, they will also continue to complete corresponding structured notes. Consider which students might benefit from the supported structured notes. Students will need to keep these notes in a safe place; consider having them keep the notes in a sturdy folder.

- See the Reading Calendar provided in the Module Overview document.

- Language standards require consistent practice and reinforcement. Based on the needs of your students, find additional opportunities to teach and practice these standards. See Lesson 19 for supplemental language mini lessons and activities.
